Course Description

This course will survey a broad range of feminist thinkers and writers from the 1970’s until the present day. We will seek to understand how feminist theory/ies has/ve evolved and embrace it/them in all the complexity, diversity, intricacy and depth that these tools for understanding the world and thinking through questions of gender and sexuality provide. From a primary differentiation between the categories of sex and gender, to the promotion of non-binary thinking, from standpoint and postmodern feminist theories to transnational and intersectional understandings, this course will explore the many voices that make up feminist theories and encourage students to theorize in their turn. It also integrates a digital humanities project in which we will attempt to map the genesis of theory transnationally.

Course Learning Outcomes

To become familiar with a variety of feminist theorists and be able to articulate distinctions and resonances between their bodies of scholarship.
To be able to apply useful feminist tools in their thinking about real world problems and issues, in order to appreciate how elements of race, class, sexuality, ability, and gender interact.
To discover the tools of the digital humanities.
To think deeply about the material, political, economic, and cultural implications for the genesis of feminist theories and their applications in activism.
To explore one area of feminist theory that is of particular interest to them and become the class expert on this theorist/body of knowledge.
To appropriate feminist approaches in order to theorize themselves.
To practice scholarly writing and research.

Attendance Policy

Students studying at The American University of Paris are expected to attend ALL scheduled classes, and in case of absence, should contact their professors to explain the situation. It is the student’s responsibility to be aware of any specific attendance policy that a faculty member might have set in the course syllabus. The French Department, for example, has its own attendance policy, and students are responsible for compliance. Academic Affairs will excuse an absence for students’ participation in study trips related to their courses.

Attendance at all exams is mandatory.

IN ALL CASES OF MISSED COURSE MEETINGS, THE RESPONSIBILITY FOR COMMUNICATION WITH THE PROFESSOR, AND FOR ARRANGING TO MAKE UP MISSED WORK, RESTS SOLELY WITH THE STUDENT.
Whether an absence is excused or not is ALWAYS up to the discretion of the professor or the department. Unexcused absences can result in a low or failing participation grade. In the case of excessive absences, it is up to the professor or the department to decide if the student will receive an “F” for the course. An instructor may recommend that a student withdraw, if absences have made it impossible to continue in the course at a satisfactory level.

Students must be mindful of this policy when making their travel arrangements, and especially during the Drop/Add and Exam Periods.

Grading Policy

Grading:

Attendance, Participation and Quizzes (10%): Punctuality, preparation, and active appropriate participation/engagement; reading quizzes may be given periodically throughout the semester with lowest quiz grade dropped; you must have assigned readings with you for each class.
